BLOCK C DANCE MARKS CADET'S SOCIAL DEBUT

Clemson Letter Men to Sponsor First Dance of Year; Jungaleers to Furnish Music

The Block "C" Club of Clemson College will formally usher in the cadet social season on Friday night, September 26, when the honorary athletic organization gives its fall hop. Music for the gala occasion, which is on the eve of the gridiron contest with the Wofford Terriers, will be furnished by Charlie Pace and his Clemson College Jungaler Orchestra.

This group of melody-makers, who made a rather early but promising debut at the annual freshman dance, offer an even larger and more experienced band than the one of last year that made great hits in Savannah and other cities. Pace and his associates have in their instruments an unusually large selection of the newest and best popular numbers and are ready to fill the new gym with the atmosphere of gayety and beauty that is always characteristic of the Block "C" dances. An added feature of the night will be a number of romantic vocal melodies crooned by the trio composed of Voight, Schaete, and Poag.

One of the largest crowds of the entire year is expected to be present at this affair, since it precedes by only one night the Wofford-Clemson football game. Special invitations have been issued to all former members of the club that is being host.

DANCE PROGRAM FOR 1930 ANNOUNCED

Total of Twelve Dances Scheduled for This Year

Under the direction of the capable group of new officers elected recently by the Senior and Junior dancing clubs, the lovers of this delightful passtime here at Clemson are certain to be led into a series of excellent dances this year. At a recent meeting of the Senior dancing club Charlie Taggart was chosen president, Bennie Crawford, vice-president; and S. T. McDowell, Secretary and Treasurer; while the members of the Junior dancing club, at a meeting held about the same time, chose as their leader L. P. LaBruce, as vice-president Bill Neely, and as secretary and treasurer, Ben Pickens.

Last week the officers of all the dancing clubs met with Dr. Sikes and the president of the Senior Class and formulated the following schedule of dances:

September 26 ----- Block "C"
October 17 ----- Ladies' Dance
November 21 ----- Junior Dance
December 18 ----- Senior Dance
February 6 ----- Sophomore Dance
February 27 ----- Mid-Winter
March 20 ----- Athletic Ball
April 17 ----- Taps Ball
May 8 ----- Junior-Senior Dance
May 29, 30 and June 1 ----- Finals

COLLEGE GROUNDS BEING BEAUTIFIED

Grounds of Engineering Building and Calhoun Mansion Given Especial Attention by Prof. Newman.

Under the direction of Prof. C. C. Newman, measures are in progress for beautifying that part of the campus around the Engineering Building and the Calhoun Mansion. At present work is being done chiefly on the roads and the preparation of grounds for the planting of shrubbery next March.

Special attention is being given to the preservation of the cedar and holly trees which were planted by Mrs. John C. Calhoun about the old mansion. Most of the cedars are still living, but only a remnant of the hollies is left. Prof. Newman hopes to make this one of the most beautiful spots on the campus. Though the campus is naturally beautiful, much of its beauty is due to the efforts of Professor Newman who graduated here in 1896, and has been connected with the Horticultural Department of the college ever since.

Professor Newman wishes to commend the students for their cooperation in the preservation of the college grounds. He expressed the opinion that the attitude of the students toward the college is becoming more favorable in this respect.

CLEMSON RIFLEMEN RETURN FROM PERRY

Five Representativess From Clemson Make Excellent Records in Shooting Matches at Camp Perry.

Five Clemson riflemen have returned from Camp Perry, where they were sent to participate in the national rifle matches. The five Clemson representatives were: F. H. Crymes, A. J. Dyess, B. S. Rose, H. D. Dowdle, and T. I. Dashiell. Lieutenant P. Kron, who coached at Camp Perry, has also returned.

F. H. Crymes and A. J. Dyess made excellent records on the fourth corps area team, which won over all R. O. T. C. and C. M. T. C. teams, after trailing the seventh corps area until the final stage.

Dashiell, Dowdle, and Rose made fine records with the South Carolina civilian team, and were commended for good behavior by Gen. Dozier, adjutant general of South Carolina.

Every year the national rifle matches are held at Camp Perry, near Toledo, Ohio, and the best marksmen from all over the country attend. A fourth corps area team is selected from the best shots at the corps area camp, near Anniston, Alabama. The first week at Perry consists of instruction in the art of rifle marksmanship, after which actual firing is begun.

Lieutenant Kron hopes to have the fourth corps area team next year to consist entirely of Clemson men, and towards this end he urges all

Y. ENTERTAINS NEW MEMBERS OF FACULTY

Annual Reception Proves Colorful Affair

Clemson's society life reached its acme of gaiety and pleasure on Wednesday evening, when the college gave a lovely reception at the Y. M. C. A., complimentary to the new members of the faculty.

The Y. M. C. A. halls were thrown en suite and decorated in snapdragons, lovely dahlias artistically arranged in silver baskets and crystal bowls. Unshaded candles burned softly in silver candlesticks on tables and pedestals.

Col. and Mrs. Munson and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Littlejohn greeted the guests at the door and Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Henry, Dr. and Mrs. Daniel and Miss Virginia Shanklin presented them to the receiving line, consisting of Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Sikes and the twenty-eight new members of the faculty.

Mr. and Mrs. Barre; Mr. and Mrs. Willis, and Dr. and Mrs. Milford invited the guests into the dining room.

The dining room table had as its central decoration a silver basket of beautiful dahlias. Unshaded green candles lighted the lovely table.

Mesdames S. B. Earle, F. H. H. Calhoun, F. L. Munson, and R. N. Brackett poured coffee with which individual ice cream and lovely cakes were served by Misses Janie Sloan, Cornelia Graham, Louise Watson, Gay Culp, Julia Hook, and other young ladies connected with the college.

Delightful punch was served from a table in the library by Mrs. P. B. Holtzendorff, Mrs. Rebecca Shiver, Miss Elizabeth Munson, Mrs. J. D. Harcombe, Miss Mildred Newman and Miss Evelyn Daniel.

The Jungaleer Orchestra furnished music for this lovely reception which is an annual affair at Clemson to bring the people of the community together and is greatly enjoyed.

LT. WRIGHT OF THE AIR CORPS SEES GAME

Lieutenant C. Dukes Wright, of the United States Army Air Corps, was a visitor on the campus last Saturday for the P. C.-Clemson football game. Lieutenant Wright was graduated from Clemson with the class of 1929 and a short time afterward entered the Army flying school at Brooks Field, San Antonio, Texas. In June of 1930 he was given his commission in the Air Corps. He is now stationed at Langley Field, Virginia.

possible good shots to go out for the team here. Individual experience should be obtained if you hope to make the Perry team next summer. Last winter the rifle team competed in two shoulder to shoulder matches with Davidson, one here and one at Davidson, and this year Lt. Kron expects to get matches with several other colleges.

TIGERS TROUNCE BLUE STOCKINGS WITH EASE

Two New Backfield Aces Uncovered in Welch and Harvin

The Clemson Tigers opened their 1930 season here Saturday with a 28 to 7 victory over the Presbyterian Blue Stockings. Cloudy skies and frequent showers did not prevent 3500 people from witnessing this game. The Bengal win marked the first of its kind over P. C. since 1924.

Offensively the Tigers predominated their rivals by running up 14 first downs to 6. Such Tiger backs as Welch, Harvin, Salley, and Justus pounded the P. C. line to shreds. Defensively, only Jimmy Green, P. C.'s threat, was able to make much headway. In the latter part of the game P. C. hoisted numerous passes, several of which were for gains. Clemson threw 10 and completed half of them, having one intercepted. P. C. tried the aerial route 12 times, completing 4, and having two intercepted.

P. C. kicked to Clemson to start the game. The Tigers returned the pigskin some 12 yards. Two attempts at the line failed and Welch punted to Jimmy Green who made no return. P. C. fumbled on the first play and a Bengal recovered. During the rest of the period the oval sea-sawed back and forth over the moist field. Clemson seemed to predominate in line plays with very little yardage via the ends. In this quarter, Welch passed to Bob Jones for the first of the Tiger's aerial attack, and gained some 25 yards. This placed the ball in scoring position, and on two plays, one for five by Welch and the last for 20 by Harvin marked up the Tigers' first score. Harvin kicked goal.

After an exchange of fumbles following the kick-off, Jimmie Green pulled an old favorite of his, and ran about 30 yards to place the Blue Stockings only 5 yards from a score. Two thrusts by small Dunlap failed to register, so Green pulled a sprint around the Tigers' right end to score P. C.'s one and only touchdown. Green kicked goal. Score: Clemson 7, P. C. 7.

The Tigers then opened up with a decided offensive and started the ball on the road for its second touchdown. A pass, Welch to Woodruff netted 25 yards. Welch smashed through the line for the remaining seven yards and the second marker. Harvin kicked the extra point.

This marked only a part of the Bengal offensive, and with Welch Justus, Harvin, and Salley alternating the Tigers continued their drives down the field. Both Welch and Harvin reeled off substantial runs for several first downs. With the ball placed thus on P. C.'s 2-yard line Harvin had an easy time in crashing through for the third score. He also made the goal. Score: Clemson 21, P. C. 7.

Another drive with Welch and Harvin setting the pace brought the ball up the field again for the Tigers. Harvin then made the final

FACULTY SWELLED BY TEN NEW INSTRUCTORS

Additions to Teaching Force Makes Clemson Faculty Largest in History

Clemson College, for the year of 1930-31 is boasting of one of the best teaching forces ever known in the history of the college. There are ten new instructors and teachers who are filling the places of those who failed to return and also as additions to the force. The new professors are as follows:

C. M. Asbill, Jr., Assistant Professor of Electrical Engineering—B. S. Clemson College, 1925—Two years with Westinghouse Co.

O. M. Clark, specialist in farm management—B. S. Clemson College 1909; M. S. Cornell University 1930.

H. P. Cooper, Professor Agronomy, Research Agronomist, Extension Agronomist—B. S. Clemson College 1911; M. S. University Wisconsin 1915; Ph.D. Cornell University 1922.

G. H. Edwards, Assistant Professor Mathematics—M. A. University South Carolina.

Marvin Guin, Assistant Professor Agricultural Economics—M. S. Iowa State College; B. S. from Auburn 1926.

Captain P. T. Heffner, Assistant to the Commandant—Colorado College and the Infantry School.

J. C. Hendricks, Assistant Professor Physics—Ph.D. Indiana University.

Captain W. B. Sharpe, Assistant Commandant—Clemson College and the Infantry School.

F. T. Tingley, Professor of Electrical Engineering—M. S. University of Illinois.

C. P. Philpot, Instructor in Engineering—B. S. Clemson College 1928—Purdue University.

NEW REGULATIONS TO GOVERN CONDUCT

New Rules Require Orderly Conduct at All Times

1. General conduct at all dances:
 - (a) General conduct at all dances will be under the supervision of the Military Department.
 - (b) This department will designate three cadet officers to serve as a floor committee.
 - (c) Any misconduct on the part of any individual shall be subject to investigation by this committee.
2. Invitations:
 - (a) Any cadet wishing to extend an invitation to a friend must present a written invitation to the committee. The committee will then decide if the person or persons are eligible to attend the dance.
 - (b) A complete list consisting of the following will be kept by the committee and a check of this list will be made as the invitation is presented at the door:

"HE IS A CLEMSON MAN"

The large number of letters sent out by The Tiger to the Alumni of this College in our subscription campaign, besides bringing to us gratifying results as far as the subscriptions are concerned, revealed or rather emphasized several interesting facts concerning the men who have gone before us.

Perhaps the most noticeable of these facts is the wide distribution of Clemson men, both geographically and (may I say, for the lack of a better word) occupationally speaking. From the addresses given us, we find that there is no state, and practically no city of any appreciable size, into which one of us might go without being able to find one or more Brother Alumni. From the letter-heads and letters, we find that there is no field of life work into which Clemson men have not entered and a large number been evidently very successful. Another interesting fact is that these Sons of Clemson have such a vital interest in all things that concern their Alma Mater. Some of the men who sent us their subscription, rather than merely fill out the blank which we sent for their convenience, wrote us very interesting and inspiring letters in which they gave striking proof of their devotion to and interest in the affairs of Clemson.

Graduates of Clemson College assume a great responsibility when they are branded as "Clemson Men". Any organization of men is primarily judged by its individuals. The Clemson Alumni includes a large and widely spread group of men, the majority of whom have made good in their chosen fields of service. What the individuals of this group do determines largely the value of the statement: "HE IS A CLEMSON MAN".

Last year, the Clemson student body was greatly inconvenienced by the late date on which "TAPS", the year-book which is published annually by the Senior Class of this college, was completed. Every year the staff of this publication, already overworked in their efforts to perform this unremunerative task, is put to an unnecessarily great inconvenience because of the lack of cooperation of the student body.

Since the largest part of the year-book is composed of pictures, the bulk of the work in assembling it is the taking of the pictures. In an effort to insure issue of "Taps" on time, this year's staff have ordered the photographers to report earlier this year than ever before.

Two photographers are already here and have started taking the pictures of the members of the Senior Class. The completion of these pictures will determine the date of the completion of "Taps". Have your picture taken at the time it is scheduled.

TIGERS TROUNCE BLUE STOCKINGS WITH EASE

ALUMNI PUBLISH NEW MAGAZINE

E. G. Parker, of Class of '24, is Editor

The first issue of The Clemson Alumni Review, a monthly magazine for Clemson alumni, has just come from the press.

The leading article in volume 1, number 1, is a biographical sketch of D. E. Swinehart, '15, a soldier of fortune, who was drowned in Japan two years ago. There is also an article describing the Engineering department of the college, a message from President Sikes, news items from the campus, and several pages of brief notes about alumni.

Officials of the Alumni Association announce that the sixteen-page magazine will be issued monthly except July and August. E. G. Parker, '24, alumni secretary, is editor. Associate editors are M. E. Campbell, '30, and L. R. Booker, '25. Dan Ravenel, Jr., '20, is advertising counsel.

- 3—which pays for the Desk Base!

Every Parker Duofold is convertible—a combination pocket and desk Pen both, at no extra charge. Choose Parker Duofold and you virtually get two Pens for the price of one.

Yet you have only one to fill. And you have your accustomed point wherever you are.

When you're on the go, it wears its trim, streamlined cap, with Parker's patented clip that holds the Pen low and unexposed in your pocket.

On your desk, it rests in Parker's ball and socket Base. And with this comes the tapered end for the Pen (once $1 extra), now included free.

Attaching the taper converts the Duofold into a Desk Set. Removing it restores the Pen to a pocket model.

Guaranteed for Life

Paying more won't get you a thing—but will deprive you of this double value. For only the Parker offers this. And a Pen that holds 17.4% more ink than average, size for size, Guaranteed for Life!

Go try them at any nearby pen counter, side by side, with any other pen, regardless of price. You'll be surprised.

A CLEMSON SOLDIER OF FORTUNE

By E. G. PARKER, Class of '24.

Editor's Note—This story is made particularly timely by the recent Peruvian revolt which resulted in the overthrow of President Leguia. The subject of this sketch was instrumental in establishing the Leguia regime in Peru eleven years ago.

On a night in 1915 at a cafe in Puntarenas, Costa Rica, a group of engineers were dining. Prominent among them was a bronzed, upstanding young American, wearing an infectious grin, and attracting them by the steely glitter of his sharp eyes. He casually mentioned the fact that he had studied military science, when a Peruvian member of the dining party became interested in him and explained that a revolution was in progress in Peru. The Peruvian offered the young American a letter of introduction to Duran leader of the rebel forces, which offer was promptly accepted. That night Dudley E. Swinehart, '15, began a career which reads more like an exaggerated Richard Harding Davis romance than the actual experiences of an American youth in the twentieth century.

Swinehart was born in Colorado. He graduated from the Berlin, Wisconsin, high school in 1911. He registered at Clemson that Fall as from Las Cascadas, Panama. While at Clemson, taking the Civil Engineering course, he was a widely-famed personage. As a speaker he was particularly outstanding; winning virtually every prize or medal offered for oratory to South Carolina college students. He was president of the 1915 class in his senior year, and was editor-in-chief of Taps. Of course his exuberance of spirit led him into numerous difficulties with the disciplinary authorities as results of various pranks and escapades.

After his graduation, Swinehart joined the engineering forces of the United Fruit Company in Costa Rica. It was here that he learned of the proposed revolution in Peru, becoming an adventurer for adventure's sake and a citizen of the world.

Proceeding to Peru, the young American presented himself to Duran, joining the revolutionary forces. The rebels were repulsed in a half-dozen attempts to gain control of the Peruvian government from 1915 to 1917. It was in the first of these scraps that Swinehart received the most serious wound of his hazardous career.

"I was green at war," he said, describing the incident. "When I went into action under Duran, and I couldn't find the heart to shoot a dinky little Peruvian who came at me with a bayonet. He was too little to kill, so I grabbed his rifle with one hand and his collar with the other. My hand slipped up around the bayonet, but I wrestled the piece from him and tossed the man back over my head. What happened when he landed I don't know, but I got this for my pains." He exhibited his right hand bearing a livid scar across the second and third fingers where the steel had severed tendons and muscles, leaving the fingers permanently stiff.

When the United States declared war on Germany, Swinehart left Duran to enter the U. S. Army. He was commissioned a second lieutenant, and to his intense disgust was assigned as an instructor at a training camp where he remained for the duration of the war.

Upon receiving his discharge from the U. S. forces in 1919 he headed again for South America where the hot-blooded Latins promised revolutions at the slightest provocation. By this time Duran had ceased to be a figure in Peruvian affairs, but Augusto P. Leguia was ascending in this turbulent little republic, and Swinehart cast his lot with the new leader. Before the next revolution got under way, Swinehart fought his first and only duel.

A CENTRAL AMERICAN DUEL

In a cafe one evening, a Portuguese veteran of the World War twitted Swinehart about his failure to see action in France, boasting of his own accomplishments in France. Finally, the Portuguese ordered wine for the crowd, and Swinehart, unthinkingly lapsed into American slang.

"Here's mud in your eye," he said, craning his glass.

The Portuguese flashed to his feet, deeply insulted and bellowing for satisfaction. Swinehart offered to settle the quarrel under the Marquis of Queensberry rules without gloves, but upon the refusal of the Portuguese he selected 38 calibre pistols at twenty-paces.

"I've always been a good pistol shot," Swinehart said, "And I knew the Portuguese couldn't hit the wall of a barn shooting from the inside, so I let him blaze away. He missed, dropped his gun, and waited for me to fire. I nicked a piece of skin off his forearm, and as the blood ran, that satisfied everybody concerned."

With the Leguia revolution scheduled to take place on July 4th, Swinehart headed a machine gun detachment to Lima on the preceding night and stationed his men on the cathedral fronting the public square. At dawn Leguia called for the surrender of the Presidents palace, pointing to Swinehart and his battalion on the cathedral heights, prepared to rake the city with machine gun fire. The palace was surrendered without the firing of a shot, Leguia becoming president of Peru.

For his part in the coup d'etat, Swinehart was appointed chief of police of Lima, but he returned the commission to take up the job of rounding up Leguia's opponents in the vicinity of Lima. After two years of constant guerrilla warfare, the task was completed in 1921.

A Chinese merchant in Lima became acquainted with the American warrior and offered him a steamer ticket to Shanghai with instructions to report at a certain hotel and wait upon developments. Within twenty-four hours after he arrived in the Chinese city, Swinehart was waited upon by a delegation from Chang Tso-Lin, Northern Chinese dictator and commander of the Mukden army. Chang was anxious to employ a military advisor, and being favorably impressed with this young American, gave him a commission as a major-general in the army of Northern China. He was later made a full general.

CHINESE MILITARY TACTICS

During his service with Chang, and shortly after the drive on Shanghai, Swinehart had an extremely narrow escape. Chang called all three of his generals into conference on the question of making an immediate drive against the enemy. The other two officers advised against the attack but Swinehart persuaded Chang to go ahead. The attack met with something of a rout; due, Swinehart maintained, to defective organization. Chang accepted the explanation—at first—and to prove his confidence, executed one of the other generals the next morning for cowardice. The following morning he executed the other for treason. That night Swinehart heard that he was being prominently mentioned as the principal in the next beheading. He caught a train for Shanghai, reaching that city still in the uniform of a Mukden general. Chang sent word to Swinehart that if he would return there would be no execution, and his Clemson assistant rejoined the commander.

Swinehart was sent to Chita, in Siberia, to investigate some powerful interest which Chang hoped to enlist. While Swinehart and city was captured by the Bolsheviks who took Chang's emissaries as hostages, imprisoning them in a building on the edge of the town. They forced a window, the two Chinese dispensed with the guards while Swinehart appropriated three ponies from the nearby stable. They rode for four nights, hiding by day, before they reached the Chinese border.

Several times Swinehart came to the United States on missions for the Chinese. One of these missions was an attempt to persuade Henry Ford to build a factory in Northern China. When he was in America, he visited his mother and other members of his family in San Diego. During one of these trips he found time to visit Peru again, serving briefly in the Tacna-Arica dispute.

On Saturday, June 23rd, 1928, Swinehart registered at the Kaihin hotel in Tokio where he had come on a secret mission for Chang. He had been in and around Tokio for a month. Sunday evening he went swimming at the seaside resort of Kamakura. With rain falling and a storm threatening, he talked with a friend on the beach, plunged into the sea, and swam out of sight. His body was washed ashore the next morning.

Police Captain—So you shot the dog. Was he mad?

Officer Murphy—No, sir, but the leddy that owned him was.

Dear teacher, please excuse John, he fell in the mud. By doing the same you will greatly oblige his mother.

Capt. Smith—My girl has parrot disease.

Capt. Motes—I'm sorry to hear that.

Capt. Smith—Yes—she repeats everything she hears.

We nominate for our hall of social errors the professor who, showing slides to a class of the fairer sex, inserted one upside down and told them to stand on their heads if they wanted to see the slide.

All's fair in love and war. Our observations have led us to conclude that where there is love there is sure to be war.

Old Pioneer—Them good old days when there was stage robbers on the road are gone forever.

Collegian—No, they're still on the road. I took a couple of chorus girls out last night.

The calf in the silk stocking has killed many a prodigal son.

At least if the girls wear longer skirts, the men will be able to study a little when in the library.

Where can I get hold of Betty? Search me, she is very ticklish.

She—Stop it. What kind of a girl do you think I am.

He—Gimme time, gimme time. That's just what I am trying to find out.

Jane—Are you looking at my knee?

John—Aw, g'wan. You know I'm above that.

Sue—You don't do much walking back from auto rides, do you?

Pue—You don't look like a steady customer of a chiroprapist either.

I had to play football with my boy friend last night.

How?

Oh, just blocking some attempted feel goals.

Chains can't keep anyone from slipping in a parked car.

Let's give the bride a shower. O. K., I'll bring the soap.

May—on the beach—Jack wants me to give him something to remember me by.

June—Why don't you give him one of your bathing suits to put in the back of his watch.

Did he tell you of his love? Not exactly. But he went thru the motions.

She—I've changed my mind. He—Well, does it work any better?

He—The lights are ging out. Are you afraid?

She—No if you take that cigarette out of your mouth.

Son—I want that money for my hotel bill.

Father—Don't buy anymore hotels.

Banker (telephoning)—I am sorry to bother you, Mr. Cohen, but your account is overdrawn $1.67.

Before he was married, Dr. Daniel said he would be boss in his own home or know the reason why. And now he's married. He knows the reason why, too.

Father—Whenever you go to the show your mother gives you money to buy a bag of peanuts with. I hope you don't throw the shells on the floor.

Johnny—No, dad, I don't. I drop them in the pockets of the man sitting next to me.

What do you think of a fellow who has lip stick on his lips?

I think he's been kissing a girl in the right place.

"Where there's smoke there is heat," said the frosh as he was introduced to the co-ed while she was puffing at a cigarette.

What makes you think that Bill has anything in his head?

I saw him scratching it.

Prof—What do you know about nitrates?

Stude—Night rates are cheaper than day rates.

Patron—Waiter, find my hat.

Waiter—It is on your head.

Patron—Don't bother then. I will look for it myself.

Guide—We are passing through a rural hamlet.

Sweet young thing—Oh, I always thought a hamlet was a pig.

First boy—I suspect we're going to move soon.

Second boy—What makes you think so?

First boy—Well, I broke a window light yesterday and mama never said a word.

Dentist—What tooth do you want extracted?

Pullman porter—Lower seven.

He—I told my wife where to get off the other night.

Second he—What happened?

He—She rode three blocks farther just to spite me.

Merchant—Farm products cost more than they used to.

Farmer—Yet, when a farmer is supposed to know the botanical name of what he's raisin' and the entomological name of the insect that eats it, and the pharmaceutical name of the chemical that will kill them, somebody's got to pay.

Everytime he sends his girl a telegram, a hardware man puts it down in his expense book as "chicken wire".

Diner—I'd like some chicken croquette.

Waiter—Yes, sir. Do you prefer those made out of pork or the ones made from hash?

A negro was inspecting a horse of a friends.

Sam—You say that horse is lazy, Jim?

Jim—Lazy? Man that fly on his nose pesters him considerably but he's waiting till dey's two 'fore he bothers 'bout sneezin' 'em off.

Suitor—Sir, I have an attachment for your daughter.

Her father—Young man, when my daughter needs accessories, I'll buy them for her.

Joyce—This dress is very snug in the sleeves.

Royce—Yeah, and it's snug in the a-hem too.

Boy—I want the car in the window.

Girl—Well, it's in the window.

Bride—There's a lot of mistakes in this cookery book.

Husband—Yes, I've tasted them.

Silas—Is V. Fleming a liar?

Crip—Well, I don't know as I'd go so far as to say that but I'll tell you this much—when feeding time comes he can't get his pigs to move 'til he gets someone else to call them for him.

Ned—Does this blind date you're fixing up for me, dress well?

Jed—Just the way you like 'em. She can be relied upon to show what the girls are'n't wearing this season.

Naughtie—Ooh, Stop. I'll be a good wifie.

Haughtie—Don't interrupt me. I was just thinking what a poor football player you'd make. You'd always be getting yourself penalized for backfield motion.

Judge—Where were you on the night of April second?

Prisoner—What do you want to know that for? You're a respectable married man, aren't you?

Gracious, that man just fell from that aeroplane and he's hanging from the air. A miracle.

No miracle at all. He's a college boy and he can't hit the ground until all his sins past thru his mind.

He—The girl I marry must be sweet, intelligent, pretty, vivacious, graceful and charming.

She—Oh, this is so sudden.

Steve—What do you mean she's a Dixie girl?

Mike—She's the kind of girl who doesn't stop necking even at the Mason-Dixon line.

She—And do you think the doctor really meant it when he said you wouldn't live another week if you didn't stop flirting with women?

Doode—I'll say he meant it. I've been flirting with his wife.

Prof. (to smart rat)—And you're able to speak seven languages? I suppose you know the King's English?

Rat—Sure, I know he's English.

She—Can you dance on one foot?

He—Yes.

She—Then keep off my other one.

Cohen—Iss dot so? Vell look up a month ago and see how did I stood.

Banker (A few minutes later)—You had a balance of $465.

Cohen—Vell, did I call you up?

She—Does your wife ever run dainty fingers like this thru your hair?

He—Oh Yes, she likes to find out how big a bump she has made.

Shopper—See here, butcher, I saw you weighing your thumb with the hamburger.

Butcher—Well, lady, can I help it if my thumb got caught in the meat grinder?

He—Will you have a cigarette? She—I'll have you to know I'm a college girl.

He—Excuse me, have a cigar.

He—Now where was I when your father interrupted?

She—At the base of my neck.

Mother—Your sister's roommate is coming down to visit us for a spell.

Son—All right, I'll try to put her under one.

First golfer—I caught my boss making love to my wife behind the club house.

Second golfer—What did you do?

First golfer—Asked him for a raise.

VESPER SERVICE

Mr. T. H. Lanham, state YMCA secretary, gave a very interesting talk at Vesper Service in the auditorium Sunday night.

Mr. Lanham chose his subject from the fifth chapter of Matthew. The two segments were:

"Let your light so shine before men"

"I am the light of the world . . ."

The speaker discussed this portion of the scripture in an appealing manner. Mr. Lanham also gave advice to Freshmen. He warned them against profanity, drinking, impurity, and unfair means.

The service was dismissed by a short prayer from Mr. Lanham.

SPEAKERS AT VESPER

Quite a number of speakers have been invited and some excellent programs are being prepared for these Sunday evening services. Mr. Claude Nelson, Southern Student Secretary, a man who has had considerable experience in the Southwest, in Italy, Switzerland and Russia, is to be here at an early date. Mr. Lester Kingman, of Seneca is to be with us October 12.

JUNIOR COUNCIL

The junior council held its regular weekly meeting Thursday evening in the office of the Y.

Hugh Montgomery, president of the council, called the meeting to order and a short business session was held.

The meeting will be held next Thursday at seven o'clock in the club room of the YMCA.

LIFESAVING COURSE

A large group of campus girls and boys have just completed work in connection with training for Junior Red Cross Life Saving. The list includes Misses Jean Foy, Dorothy Fitzpatrick, Virginia Abbott, Mary Earle, Betty Marshall, Dorothy Abbott, Messrs. Alex Crouch, Dave Watkins, Jr., Jimmie Hunter, Fred Calhoun and numerous other smaller boys and girls who have been in attendance but who are not old enough to enter.

CABINET MEETING

The YMCA cabinet met Monday evening at seven o'clock in the Cabinet room of the Y for a short business session.

The meeting was called to order by the president and the "Financial Question" was presented for discussion. The cabinet took definite steps toward presenting the financial campaign in a new appealing fashion. It was decided that each company would be entertained at the Y on a designated night and the question be presented. Arriving at this conclusion the meeting was adjourned after a short prayer.

MEMBERS OF "C" COMPANY ENTERTAINED AT Y M C A

The members of C company were invited to the Y Thursday evening to hear a discussion of the work of the Y at Clemson, in the state and in the world.

Over a hundred attended. Alan Johnstone, chairman of the campaign for the fund raised for state, foreign, and home Y M C A. An interesting discussion was made. Refreshments were served and over ten dollars was subscribed in cash and about fifteen dollars in pledges.

BABSON'S REPORT

Business depressions are caused by dissipation, dishonesty, disobedience to God's will—a general collapse of moral character. Statistics show this plainly. With equal precision they show how business depressions are cured. They are cured by moral awakening, spiritual revival, and the rehabilitation of righteousness. The "American Banker's Association" can provide capital. The "American Statistical Association" can measure results. But the association which goes to the real root of the matter is the "Young Men's Christian Association". This latter has far greater possibilities than the others combined.

To bring back prosperity, people must be "conditioned", as the psychologists say. They must be conditioned in right ways of working and living on all sides of the triangle of physical, mental, and spiritual values. The economic welfare of our nation can be directly promoted by supporting our Young Men's Christian Associations. They are indispensable agencies in laying the foundation for better times. Any lessening of support of the Young Men's Christian Association at this critical juncture is like withholding seed at the very moment when all hands are sowing for a life-giving harvest. I go further and say that business men should today increase their support of this and all other truly religious work.

SENIOR Y COUNCIL MEETING

Tuesday evening at seven o'clock the senior Y council held the second meeting of the year in the club room of the YMCA.

Charlie Jerrard opened the meeting with a short devotional consisting of a scripture reading and a few sentence prayers. An advisor was considered for the council. After much discussion and criticism the topic was passed on and the building of a cabin on the Seneca River was considered. Plans were made and the committee will start work as soon as possible. This cabin will be used for over night retreats of all councils and cabinets. A small library will be installed and many may desire to spend a pleasant afternoon reading.

The senior Y council has functioned and through the initiative, aggressiveness, and enthusiasm of the men in the council much is expected to be derived from the new organization.

FACULTY-STUDENT SUPPER TO BE HELD AT THE YMCA SOON

The annual affair that furnishes quite an impetus to a better understanding between the students and members of the Faculty—the Faculty-Student Supper is to be held soon. See additional announcements later.

PRESIDENT SOPH. COUNCIL

N. B. Glenn, of Anderson, elected president of the sophomore council to succeed L. A. Wallace who did not return to school.

A POEM

In this column each week a very carefully selected poem will appear. If you have in mind a real good poem that you would like to share with others send it to THE TIGER and it will be considered for this column.

A MAN'S PRAYER

Lord, if one boon alone be granted me,
Let me but choose what that one boon shall be;
I shall not ask to live 'mid sheltered bliss,
In soft security—but only this:

Let me be not a coward in the strife
That sweeps across the battlefields of life,
Let me leave not for other lives to bear,
The burdens that were rightfully my share.

Let me not whine nor even seek to shrink,
But cheerfully bear my full load of work;
Then, place a friendly shoulder neath the load
Of one who faintly sinks beside the road.

Let me, O Lord, be clean and unafraid,
Let me go forth to meet life undis-mayed,
Until the final hour of life's brief span,
Let me walk upright—let me be
A MAN!

Thus let me live; that when the day's work is done
I pitch my tent toward the setting sun,
Lie down to rest, and from my labors cease,
My soul, within its house, shall be at peace.

SPORTS

COLLAR THAT TERRIER

SPORTS

As an opener, the game with the Presbyterians Saturday gave most of the numerous spectators an idea of the strength of Clemson's 1930 Tigers. The score may have been a little larger than some had expected, but that in itself was no indication of the amount of reserve power that the Bengals held in leash.

Most of the authorities present conceded Clemson's offensive possibilities, but thought the defensive operations not up to standard. Of course all that they said remains to be proven. Yet all things were not considered in their various statements. Offensively the Tigers are far better as a team this year than last. No individual offensive threats such as "Goat" McMillan have turned up as yet. Still, as a team the Tigers are not as weak as most sportswriters think.

P. C.'s line, so the papers state, averaged something like 180 pounds. Now that's no light line. And when one considers how easily the Tiger backs gained ground when they needed it, one can understand a little of what the Tigers promise this year.

Three different teams were used by Coach Cody and a number of the linemen were sophomores undergoing their first experience in a varsity contest. Some of these men were better than others. Perhaps that accounted for the defensive errors the latter teams made. Still P. C.'s flashy backs didn't get away with any enormous amount of yardage. Most of their first downs were made during this period.

P. C.'s SCORE

The score in itself was a little surprising to the conservative element among the crowds. Some figured the Tigers a couple of touchdowns better, but did not think P. C. would tally. Jimmy Green's two long dashes were responsible for that lone marker. The Blue Stocking fans certainly enjoyed that moment. With the score again even some people may have wondered if the Tigers were going to win as predicted. They didn't wonder very long. Clemson for the next two quarters could not be stopped for any length of time. The team was functioning in the true sense of the word. It exhibited the type of team that Coach Cody turns out, revealing to the initiated that more is yet to come.

FEW STELLAR LIGHTS

Little can be said about individuals in the game Saturday, but plenty can be said about the team. Perhaps one of the most noticeable things, other than Jimmy Green's two sprints and Lionel Harvin's twist through center for the third touchdown of the game, was "Mule" Yarborough's blocking which made Harvin's run possible. "Mule" downed the only P. C. man that might have hindered Lionel Harvin in his dash for a score. Such work gets so little recognition that it won't harm anyone to mention it here.

KICKING FEATURES

Another feature of Saturday's game was the placement kicking of Harvin. He truly has taken the vacancy in this department that Bob McCarley left. Yet even in mentioning the kicking of Harvin one cannot get around the fact that the other members of the team gave him all the time in the world to do his kicking. This was noticeable in the Tiger punting. The line and backs defended the kicker in every instance. That was one of the main reasons why all of Clemson's punts were placed so well.

Speaking of kicking, Bob Miller's attempted drop-kick for a field goal was something that had not taken place on Riggs field since the last P. C. game in '27. Even that was from placement. Such a thing has not happened in the state in a good while, and if it had been successful, it would have been one of those rare occurrences that are preserved in books. Scores from field goals since the ruling several years back which moved the goal posts ten yards back, has been practically nihil.

AN ADDED ATTRACTION

The weather, as in most of the games throughout the state, played a certain part in the game. The grey, warm day put a blanket on most of the enthusiasm usually present at opening games. However, the student bodies of the two institutions made as much noise as conditions permitted.

One of the four cops present to aid in handling the crowds was heard to remark that he had never had such an easy job. Everybody seemed to be at their best. And the crowd was not small at that.

TERRIER DOPE

With one game tucked away on the win side of the ledger, the Tigers start warming up for the Wofford game Saturday. Last week P. C. seemed to be a bit stronger than the Terriers, but the latter's 43 to 0 win over Newberry causes a reversal of opinions. Maybe Wofford is stronger than P. C. Just how much stronger the Tiger will attempt to decide.

Last year in Spartanburg Wofford was played prior to the state classic with Carolina, and the Peril romped away with a 30 to 0 victory. This year everybody is a little doubtful of the Bengals. That is, outsiders are. It is certain that the Terriers have some capable ball carriers in Jackson, Scott, and Fox. This trio seemed to run things as they pleased against Newberry. Newberry this year, however, does not boast of such a heavy line, or a line offering the same type of goods displayed by the Tigers. And just what Fox, Scott, and Jackson can do against the Tiger forward bulwarks will remain to be seen.

Not very much is known around these parts as to the Terrier's strength, but it is known that they have a much better team than that of last year with a bunch of veteran material. That means that they will put up a much better game than they did last year. Last year for the first quarter or so they had the Bengals working hard for a score. Now just how hard and just how long Wofford will make the 1930 Tigers work for a goal is one of the questions Saturday's game will answer.

TIGERS AND TERRIERS TO MEET SATURDAY

Wofford Primed for Tilt With Old Rivals; Welch-Harvin Duo vs. Fox-Jackson Combination.

Harvin, Welch, Jones, et al, cleared up any doubt which lingered in the minds of the most skeptical fans who witnessed the debut of the Tigers against their stout hearted opponents from Presbyterian College last September 20.

It was the general belief of outsiders that the Tigers would be a different aggregation this year after suffering the loss of so many letter men via the shepskine route alst spring. However, they failed to take into consideration the powerful carryover of hefty substitutes from the 1930 eleven.

A great fight has been fought and won P. C. primed for their encounter with the Tigers with all the ardor of a Gamecock, and they fought a brave, determined battle, but like the Gamecocks, they fell before a slashing Tiger attack with a resonating thud.

The victory was a juicy morsel for the Tiger pack, but greater obstacles lie in their path. Coach Scaffie and his crew of Wofford Terriers, yelping and squalling over their runaway victory over the Newberry Indians, will furnish the opposition for next week's entertainment and will further test the metal of the new combination Josh has so carefully molded from so many choice pieces.

From reports eeking out from the Terrier camp, it seems that the Tigers are not likely to have any peaceful siesta in their next engagement. The Terriers, humbled frequently in the past, rather ignominiously at times, are on a taunt leash and are ready to give the Tigers a real scrap.

Their roughshod victory over Newberry is evidence enough in itself of the strength of Scaffie's squad, and will cause no little discomfort to the coaches who booked the Terriers as primers for the tougher games later in the fall. Wofford is strong. This cannot be denied. This was evidenced by their steamroller tactics against the Newberries. Their forward wall was impenetrable, not a single first down was registered against them. Newberry tallied five downs all of which were made via the overhead route or by passes. Captain Gleaton, King, Rushton, and Berry are all fast, big men who give no quarter and ask none. The men have been going through a three week training camp session and are well able to stand the gaff. They are a rugged crew, leaning not so much to height as to brawn and muscle.

The performance of Scaffie's backfield men against the Redmen was all that a coach could ask. Fox and Scott are two brilliant, hard running backs who scored a trio of touchdowns each in their initial performance of the season. Jackson, too, must be reckoned with. This fleet veteran of the gridiron snagged the opening kickoff of the second half and galloped 85 yards through the entire Newberry crew to score. On another occasion, Fox slipped off tackle on a cutback play and stepped 55 yards to Newberry's three yard line before he could be halted.

However, it is believed that the Tiger wingmen are big, fast, and rangy enough to stop this type of play. Bob Jones and Foggy Woodruff are experienced veterans and are especially adept at smearing plays which start in their direction. The entire forward wall for that matter is composed of veterans.

Jesse Hardin "Mule" Yarborough, who rose to great heights in the Furman game last year, is guarding left tackle, and Rueben Seigel, son of Abraham, and a muscular bundle of some 210 odd pounds is protecting the tackle on the right.

Vic Fleming and Skinny Long are custodians of the guard positions. Skinny is a graduate of the bohunks having been a stalwart among their ranks for the past two years. Merely being a bohunk should be a sufficient guarantee of his worth. Vic is a rough and ready character who is always prepared to scrap with the best of them.

Red Fordham really takes care of the pivot position. He was handicapped by injuries much of last season, but is whole and entire now and brings back memories of the days when O.K. Pressley roamed the sod of Rigg's Field.

Josh Cody will have the Tigers primed for the big show next week, and his many followers will be rewarded with what promises to be the most hectic struggle in Tiger territory this year.
